

Social Case Management for Highly Complex People

Transforming Care Masterclass for frontline workers and practitioners

Tuesday 21 March 2017 (Leeds)

What is this?

This free workshop is the second in a series of Transforming Care Masterclasses that will be organised for 2017. Each one will give you an opportunity to develop practical knowledge around a different theme.

Each Masterclass is designed to support staff develop the skills to help deliver the Transforming Care agenda and the vision contained within 'Building the Right Support'.

We will focus on the "how" rather than the strategic vision.

This masterclass aims:

- Allow people to hear from self-advocates about what worked well for them and what could have been better.
- Work in a solution focused way to support people after they have been discharged into the community
- Enable attendees to hear what has worked elsewhere and understand some of the conditions that enable this to happen.
- Contribute to your core skills training.

Key topics for this Masterclass will include:

- Assessment and accessing information
- Risk assessment and formulation of positive behaviour support
- Working with MAPPA and probation – multi-agency roles and responsibilities.
- Social Supervision under Restriction Orders

The sessions will be led by experienced practitioners, such as Gavin Harding, NHS England and Liz Zijlstra and Helen Van Ristell from Community Transitions, and Sue Baldwin, Specialist Probation Officer who will share their own knowledge and support you to further develop your own good practice.

Who should attend?

We would like this session to be attended by social workers and care coordinators who are working with highly complex people towards discharge into the community who may be restricted.

Other professionals who work with people in restrictive settings are also welcome to attend, but the information will be aimed at this group.

This workshop will take place on
